That is a futuro, a structure produced in Finland in the 1960's. They were originally designed to be used as residences. Only about 50 of them are still around today. I captured another one of them in Delaware.

Oh they've painted it since last summer. Heard eventually they want to make that a seating area for the Twistee Treat.

what's the sq. footage ? or is it ovoid footage ?
i'd live in it.

JiBryant (16 months ago)

here's another Futuro

Very cool. There's one that was in the Sulphur Springs part of Tampa, Florida forever (may still be there). No photo, but you can check it out in this video: www.youtube.com/watch?v=ROJ31eYg-xs&feature=player_em..., which really sums up the area.

It's in considerably less pristine shape.
